Description

A full-length portrait of a Renaissance gentleman, presented in an oval format and painted in oil on a wooden panel. The figure is depicted standing, dressed in a rich court costume consisting of an embroidered doublet, a dark cape, a white ruff, and puffed hose, holding a sword in the style of the late 16th century. The quality of the facial rendering, the delicate rendering of the fabrics, and the gilded highlights on the costume all attest to meticulous craftsmanship. The figure stands on a checkered floor against a solid green background, a composition characteristic of Renaissance court portraits. The panel is set in an antique gilded wooden frame with an oval opening, bearing a plaque engraved with "Jean Clouet." This historical inscription is provided for traditional identification purposes and does not
