Description

Set of 2 Japanese tokkuri, antique and authentic traditional ceramics, decorated and kiln-fired, with a beautiful glaze. In very good condition--no chips, but left in their original state-- they can be cleaned. Japanese Tokkuri: A tokkuri is a ceramic (or porcelain, glass, or bamboo) bottle used to serve sake, the traditional Japanese rice wine. The tokkuri is typically bulb-shaped with a narrow neck to prevent the sake from losing its freshness. The sake is then poured into small ceramic cups called: choko, guinomi, sakazuki, or even wooden masu. Normal signs of wear due to age; dates from the late 19th century or around 1900. Dimensions: 27 cm by 34 cm. Full of charm; guaranteed to add decorative flair. Price for both
