Description

A landscape of the English countryside featuring an impressive waterfall with surging waters. Through a beautiful rendering of texture, the water seems to pour down upon the viewer. This superbly executed painting is part of the remarkable depictions of nature by English painters of the Romantic period. Only a small, reddish figure bears witness to the symbolic presence of the human condition in the face of the power of the elements of nature. The painting has been cleaned and re-stretched onto its original stretcher. Restored period frame in gilded wood. The artist's signature appears in the lower left corner of the canvas.
