Antique Oil On Canvas, "the Holy Face Of Jesus Christ" (ecce Homo)

1 200 EUR

Period : 17th century

Condition : Bon état

Material : Oil painting

Description

The painting is a portrait of the Holy Face of Jesus Christ wearing the crown of thorns, a common subject in Christian iconography, also known as Ecce Homo. This type of work has deep roots in tradition, particularly in the Byzantine and early Italian styles. Subject: It depicts the suffering face of Christ during the Passion, with blood dripping from his forehead due to the crown of thorns. Style: It features dramatic lighting that highlights his facial features. Medium and Condition: Oil on canvas; shows signs of aging and wear. It bears many similarities to a painting that previously appeared at auction, a Christ by a workshop associated with Philippe de Champaigne (1602-1664). A work of great depth; the face of Christ is very realistic--note the tears--a work worthy of study.
