Description

Étienne Bouillé, painter and photographer, born in 1858 in Villiers-Saint-Benoît, Burgundy, died in Perros-Guirec in 1933. In Paris, he frequented the studios of Jean-Léon Gérôme and Luigi Loir. He discovered Brittany in 1889 and was captivated by its landscapes and light. He settled in Guingamp in 1892, then in Perros-Guirec in 1914. Until the 1930s, he traveled throughout Brittany, tirelessly photographing fishermen, seaweed harvesters, and farmers and painting a considerable number of realistic canvases.
