Description

Empire Restoration-era console table in mahogany, with a gray marble top and claw feet - 19th century
Description: An elegant Empire Restoration-era console table in flamed mahogany, resting on a sculptural base with a strong character. It features an original, fluted gray veined marble top (Sainte-Anne type), which lends it a striking presence. The base is particularly well-crafted: scroll-shaped legs ending in carved claws; side consoles with volutes; a dynamic crossbar at the base; and a front highlighted by a discreet drawer set into the side panel. Beautiful woodwork featuring mahogany with deep flaming grain, typical of the Empire-Restoration period (circa 1820-1830). A design that is both understated and powerful, ideal as an entryway console, behind a sofa, or as
