Description

A charming pair of finely glazed Japanese porcelain figurines depicting a young man and a young woman carrying baskets suspended from a pole. The natural poses, the delicacy of the faces, and the rich decoration on the kimonos attest to the meticulous craftsmanship of the early 20th century. The red painted and blue underglaze marks on the bases are consistent with Japanese production, likely from workshops in Kutani or Seto. This pair captivates with its luminous polychromy, fine craftsmanship, and elegant decorative presence.
