Description

A Louis XVI-style walnut chest of drawers from the early 19th century (late 18th century); the front features five drawers in three rows with drop-down handles. A key opens the center drawer of the top section; it works. The top is made of very thick white veined marble with a grooved edge. This chest of drawers is adorned with brass moldings on the drawers and the two-panel sides. A brass molding highlights the row of three upper drawers. The front legs are rounded with fluted grooves; the back legs are also fluted. The tops of the front legs are adorned with scrapers. The four "toupie" legs are banded and end in a shoe. This chest of drawers, in very good original condition, is a rare walnut model and is of very fine craftsmanship. Note: Scratches on the marble are visible in one photograph.
