Description

Stunning Turkmen Yomud saddle rug. Woven and knotted using wool-on-wool technique. The pile is rather short, which is typical for this type of rug. The dyes are exclusively plant-based, and the indigo blue has watery highlights in places. The brown background also offers magnificent shimmer depending on the light. These effects are due to the remarkable quality of the wool. On the back of the piece, one can observe and appreciate the extreme regularity of the knotted weave. It is a work of art. The piece is in perfect, flawless condition. At one end, you can see the system of rings that were used to secure the rug to the horse. A beautiful collector's piece, perhaps ideal as a bedside rug, for an entryway, or any other use. Circa 1900-1920 Dimensions: 120 x 76
