Description

Aubusson tapestry border, 19th century
Elegant 19th-century Aubusson tapestry border, from a château in central France. This refined design consists of a series of eight scalloped cartouches alternating between two floral motifs: delicate, stylized flowers in shades of ivory and red, followed by large, blooming flowers in shades of powder pink, all framed by a black border that elegantly highlights the entire composition. Its soft colors, subtly weathered by time, and its repetitive pattern make it a remarkable decorative piece, ideal for both classic and contemporary decor. This tapestry will naturally find its place as a headboard, above a door or window, but can also be transformed into a stunning set of cushions, used to dress a bench or a folding screen, or incorporated into any interior design.

Some signs of wear and previous restorations, consistent with the tapestry's age, which in no way detract from its decorative character.
