Description

7,800 for the set of 3 2,700 each Three beautiful oil paintings depicting various birds and insects against scenic backdrops. Our works capture the finesse and precision of scientific illustrations from that era while incorporating aesthetic elements from traditional landscape paintings. Birds in art are a rich and fertile theme. Starting in the mid-18th century, with the rise of the scientific and encyclopedic spirit, a taste for ornithological books began to develop. The drawn, painted, or watercolor plates in these works thus depict birds with a commitment to accuracy. The scientific enthusiasm for ornithological study continued into the 19th century (at the beginning of the century, 3,000 bird species were recorded, compared to 564 in 1758).
