Description

A mid-19th-century Dutch table, crafted from walnut with a round walnut burl top. The top features a central inlay depicting a floral composition crafted with various woods on an elegant ebonized background. This decorative motif extends to the table's frame, enriched with maple leaf and scroll inlays and six distinct floral groups. The finely crafted maple and rosewood trim contributes to a refined aesthetic harmony. The frame rests on a turned central leg, which branches into three wavy feet adorned with leaf and scroll carvings, terminating in practical castors.
