Description

Art Deco Panther - carved from a single piece of wood - attributed to Fritz Behn A superb Art Deco sculpture depicting a panther, entirely hand-carved from a single piece of solid wood, attributed to the German sculptor Fritz Behn (1878-1970). Its powerful stance, fluid lines, and finely crafted details lend it an elegance and dynamism characteristic of the Art Deco period. The fact that this sculpture is carved from a single block of wood is a testament to exceptional craftsmanship. Its beautiful antique patina and the warm tones of the wood make it a remarkable decorative piece that will fit equally well in both classic and contemporary interiors. Features: Art Deco period, circa 1920-1935 Carved from a single piece of solid wood Depiction of a panther Attributed to Fritz
