This ceramic table, designed by Georges Pelletier for La Roue Vallauris in the 1970s, perfectly captures the charm of mid-20th-century French design. Its oval tabletop is adorned with finely hand-painted tiles featuring bold concentric geometric patterns in shades of blue and gold. The steel frame encases the three tabletops. Its retractable extensions echo the artistic style of the main tabletop. Georges Pelletier, born in 1938, is a French ceramic artist renowned for his innovative creations. Trained at the École des Métiers d'Art in Paris, he combines traditional craftsmanship with an avant-garde aesthetic, creating timeless pieces that reflect the rich ceramic heritage of Vallauris. A few tiles are broken (see our photos), but the table as a whole retains an undeniable charm. The tiles are numbered and assembled without being glued, allowing for easy replacement in case of damage.
