Description

A beautiful oil on canvas mounted on board by the painter Jean-Louis Karcher (born in 1940), signed in the lower left corner and titled "Ciel pommel  " on the back. This work depicts a magnificent view of the Breton coastline, bathed in exceptional light. The artist skillfully captures the immensity of the sky, the transparency of the turquoise waters, the golden sand dunes, and the traditional Breton houses that dot the landscape. The composition, imbued with great serenity, is dominated by a vast sky animated by mottled clouds, which lend this seascape its poetic quality. The color palette is remarkable: the deep blues of the sea complement the luminous tones of the sand and the brilliant whites of the clouds, creating an atmosphere that is both peaceful and luminous.
