Description

This antique billiard table, built to regulation size (for billiards or snooker) and dating from around 1890, is crafted from solid English oak and features exquisite details; it stands proudly on eight finely carved column-style legs, each adorned with panels and decorative motifs. Manufactured by Burroughes & Watts, the table is equipped with patented steel cushions featuring a "vacuum" system that ensures optimal play, and is enhanced by friezes adorned with medallions. The set also includes a matching scoreboard and a freestanding rotating cue rack. It is extremely rare to find such a complete set, with all original accessories intact. The quality of the wood is remarkable, as the set is made entirely of solid English oak. This piece was likely custom-made for a grand country estate of the
