

Twisted Mosaic Column Pedestal With Corinthian Capital

1 830 EUR

Period : 20th century

Description

This striking twisted column pedestal is a beautifully decorative architectural piece inspired by the famous Solomonic columns of the Baroque period. Crafted from cement or cast stone with an attractive aged patina, it features an elegant spiral shaft enriched by inset blue and gold mosaic tiles that create a remarkable visual contrast against the warm stone finish. The finely sculpted Corinthian-style capital, decorated with stylized acanthus leaves, gives the piece a classical architectural presence while the substantial square base provides stability and balance. Originally conceived as an architectural decorative element, this column is equally at home in a contemporary or traditional interior. It makes an impressive pedestal for displaying a bronze sculpture, marble bust, urn, or large decorative vase, as illustrated in the photographs. The combination of the spiral form and colorful mosaic detailing lends the piece a Mediterranean character reminiscent of historic Italian and Spanish architecture. The naturally weathered surface, minor age-related wear, and small imperfections are consistent with its age and use, adding authentic charm rather than detracting from its beauty. Dating from the 20th-century, this decorative column is both functional and sculptural, making it an eye-catching statement piece for an entrance hall, living room, gallery, conservatory, or covered outdoor space.
