Description

An elegant Louis XV sofa in lacquered and gilded wood, crafted in Sicily in the mid-18th century, exemplifying extraordinary craftsmanship and a fully Rococo aesthetic. The carved wooden frame features an elegant, undulating, and asymmetrical design typical of the style, with rich volutes, floral motifs, and finely carved shells, all embellished with luminous gold leaf on a lacquered background. The contoured backrest unfolds in a sinuous, enveloping line, culminating in richly openwork and ornate finials. The armrests end in elaborate curls, while the lower seat panel is enlivened by a profusion of plant-inspired carvings that lend lightness and dynamism to the overall design. The slender, arched legs blend harmoniously with the frame, featuring sculptural
