Description

A two-panel screen painted on a silver leaf ground, depicting a hawk perched on a flowering plum branch.

The hawk is rendered with remarkable naturalistic attention: its plumage displays a refined layering of brown, grey, and ochre tones, while its vigilant gaze and gilt talons emphasize its solemn presence.

The gnarled branches of the plum tree intertwine elegantly across the surface, creating a dense decorative pattern punctuated by small white blossoms and scattered buds.

Signed lower left with seal.

Period: Meiji, late 19th century.

Dimensions: 153 × 137 cm.

Condition: Good condition, with signs of age and restorations along the central hinge.
