(1840-1899) Pierre Outin was a French painter born in Moulins and who died in Paris. Trained under Charles Lecointe and later Alexandre

Cabanel, he made his debut at the Paris Salon in 1868. A specialist in genre scenes and historical subjects, he distinguished himself through his elegant and refined style, often inspired by the 18th century. A long stay in Algeria in 1874 enriched his palette and also steered him toward .

Having won several awards at the Salon, notably for L'Émigré (1883) and Épisode de la déroute de
