Description

By Louis Dage (1935-1957) Antique small glazed art ceramic vase from the Art Deco period, Antony studio (1921-1934) Height: 12.5 cm; diameter: 8 cm collectible Louis Dage (1885-1961) was a French ceramicist whose career spanned from the Paris region to the Landes, where he settled in 1935. He worked notably at the Faïencerie de l'Adour in Saint-Sever and developed a rich and experimental body of work, blending Art Nouveau and Art Deco influences with reinterpretations of Samadet's decorative motifs. His work is distinguished by the diversity of techniques used--glazes, drips, crackle finishes, and inlays--and by a great deal of creative freedom. A unique figure in 20th-century French ceramics.
