Description

A superb bronze sculpture depicting the head and neck of a dressage horse. The expression is beautiful; one can sense the animal's strength and power, as well as the rider's control. Bronze portraits of horses are rare. Signed Chatil, a sculptor from the early 20th century. Black marble base. The bronze has a beautiful green patina with a few micro-scratches. The marble base has a chip and two filled-in holes where a plaque bearing the horse's name was likely once attached. Early 20th century, circa 1920. I have not found a similar piece; this may have been a custom commission. Shipping: 18 euros within France, 35 euros within the EU, and 150 euros to the rest of the world.
