Description

A bronze sculpture with a brown patina depicting a young bull in a calm and realistic pose. The modeling highlights the animal's power and reflects the late 19th-century taste for animal sculpture. The sculpture is displayed on its original pedestal and retains its engraved plaque: "Young Bull - by R. Guillaume - Bronze Medal - 1889 Exhibition". This inscription places the work within the context of the major exhibitions of the late 19th century, where animal sculptures played a significant role. A high-quality decorative piece, preserved with its original plaque, which enhances its historical significance and authenticity.
