Description

Bronze statue "La Paix Armée" by Jules Félix Coutan
A patinated bronze statue resting on a polished red marble pedestal. It depicts a winged female allegory of Peace, wearing a helmet. She rests her left hand on a drawn sword, while her foot rests on an overflowing cornucopia. This symbolizes the fact that true prosperity and peace must be protected. The statue dates from 1887 and reflects the prevailing sentiment of the time: "Si vis pacem, para bellum"--if you want peace, prepare for war. The bronze bears the engraving "Jules Coutan," as well as the inscription "Thiébaud Frères / Fumière & Compagnie Successeurs," confirming that the statue was cast in the late 19th century. The pedestal is made of high-quality, vibrantly colored marble and consists of several tiers.
