Description

An elegant late 18th-century Italian console table made of finely carved and gilded wood, resting on four tapered, fluted legs with Corinthian-inspired capitals. The apron is richly openworked with a design of finely cut lambrequins, attesting to the quality of this piece's craftsmanship. Granite top in the "postérieur" style. The piece as a whole displays beautiful proportions and refined architecture, characteristic of Italian furniture from the Louis XVI period, where the influence of neoclassical taste blends with a wealth of ornamentation.
