Description

This 18th-century Flemish painting depicts a bucolic scene bathed in a warm and serene atmosphere. In the foreground stands a small herd of cattle, including cows and calves, watched over by a shepherd who is partially visible in the background. The rural landscape is dominated by a dense grove of trees in the center that stands out against a sky streaked with light-colored clouds. In the background, the outlines of hills can be seen, and the golden light suggests the hour of sunset or sunrise. The work is set within an elaborate, carved, and gilded wooden frame from the period.
