Description

Set of eight gold-plated glass buttons from the Bimini factory in the United Kingdom. Each button is stamped with a lion's head in profile, inspired by a Greek coin. On the reverse side of one of them is the inscription "Made in England," along with a small flowerpot (the Bimini trademark). Fritz Lampl founded the Bimini Glassworks in 1923 in Austria; he was forced to relocate his company to London in 1930, where he reorganized his glass business. He produced a wide variety of glass objects, including intricately crafted buttons that were highly sought after by designers of the time. Period: circa 1930-1940. Condition: Perfect condition, very slight wear on the gold plating (see photos). Average dimensions of a button: Height: approximately 4.2 cm Width: approximately 2.6
