Description

A pair of antique chromolithographs from the late 19th century. An allegorical subject depicting two young women in a bucolic landscape, inspired by the neoclassical style. Dressed in ancient-style robes and moving through lush natural surroundings, they hold armfuls of flowers and flowering branches, evoking the renewal of nature, spring, and abundance. Both chromolithographs are preserved in their original molded wooden frames. Height: 64 cm Width: 33 cm (each frame) In good overall condition.
