Description

- A wood panel carved from a single piece of wood (monoxyle), gilded and polychrome, 18th-century work (Iberian Peninsula) - The Baroque style is evident here in the abundance of polychrome carved decoration (gilded and dark green), notably featuring acanthus leaves with serpentine lines. These leaves serve, in particular, as a frame for a central cartouche trimmed with red velvet. - Its design suggests that it was intended to be placed at the top of a larger wood paneling unit. - In good condition - Dimensions - width: 64.5 cm, depth: 22.5 cm, height: 37.8 cm
