Description

This rug, measuring 3.33 x 2.35 meters, is hand-knotted, made between 1960 and 1970, and is in good condition. The wool and KURK Ghom rugs emerged in Iran around 1920-1930, driven by artisans and merchants from Kashan. Our rug perfectly exemplifies this tradition with exceptional wool, fine and precise patterns, and harmonious colors. It also shares many similarities with Kashan rugs, particularly in the medallions and borders. Made with a tight Persian knot on fine wool, Ghom rugs are distinguished by their distinctive designs. This design features a field covered with Herati motifs--the Herati consists of a flower framed by a diamond, surrounded by four acanthus leaves. This rug, marketed under the names Ghom, Qom, or Qum, is a magnificent example of this art form,
