Description

Tempera on wood depicting Saint Catherine of Alexandria and Saint John the Evangelist--19th-century Tuscan school--dimensions: h. 133.5 cm, w. 54.5 cm Saint John the Evangelist: The bearded man on the left, holding a book and making a gesture of blessing, is often identified as Saint John the Evangelist, author of the Gospel. Saint Catherine of Alexandria: The woman on the right, holding a palm branch (a symbol of martyrdom) and with a cogwheel at her feet (a symbol of her martyrdom), is almost certainly Saint Catherine of Alexandria. Context: This type of artwork is common in Italian painting, particularly between the late Middle Ages and the Renaissance, and is often found on altarpieces.
