

Jwr Glazed Stoneware Jug In The Renaissance Style

290 EUR

Signature : Johan Wilhem Remy (1833-18911)

Period : 19th century

Condition : Bon état

Material : Sandstone

Width : 14 cm

Height : 24 cm

Description

A blue-gray glazed stoneware jug in the Renaissance style, featuring a frieze around the body depicting a series of figures--presumably the apostles--and medallions with portraits of men and women in Renaissance attire (Grand Electors?) On the base, the JWR stamp, the number "187," and the capacity: 1/2 L This number, 187, attests to the model's age--certainly the 1870s--since, numbers above 700 date from the 20th century. This jug is in the Renaissance or historicist style, a trend that developed in Germany under Wilhelm II. Johan Wilhem Rémy was born in 1833 in Hohn, now in Rhineland-Palatinate, and died in 1911, leaving his factory to his sons. Note: there is a small chip on the hat of one of the men in the upper frieze. Careful shipping worldwide

<https://www.proantic.com/en/1794099-jwr-glazed-stoneware-jug-in-the-renaissance-style.html>

Dealer

laurent klein ateliers

Généraliste

Mobile : 0680137519

Paris 75007