Description

17th-century Aubusson wool tapestry. Featuring figures set against a verdant landscape, with a small castle and a village in the background. The richly dressed main figure must originally have had his lady love at his right side! At his feet is a flower bed; one can even make out a bird perched on some branches. The entire scene is framed by a wide border decorated with falling fruit surmounted by heads, coats of arms, and vases. As is often the case, our tapestry was likely reduced in size--either because it was too large or too damaged... Despite the wear and tear, the colors are still vibrant, and the piece remains very decorative. 17th-century Aubusson, France.
