Description

Elegant Louis XVI-style daybed, dating from the early 19th century. Made of molded wood and richly carved with acanthus leaves and interlaced patterns. The two headboards are framed by freestanding columns and rest on graceful, spirally fluted legs. Fully reupholstered in eco-friendly French linen in a natural shade, finished with small tacks. Equipped with two feather-filled bolsters and its mattress (with removable covers). Particularly decorative thanks to the combination of its original patina and the understated beauty of the natural linen fiber. This daybed can be completely disassembled, making it easy to transport.
