Description

A pair of blown crystal decanters, richly decorated with polychrome enamels and gilding, dating from the 19th century. With their elegant, slender shape, these carafes are distinguished by their finely executed decoration, consisting of floral motifs, foliage, and arabesques enhanced by sumptuous gilding. The faceted bodies, long, architecturally designed necks, and matching stoppers are a testament to remarkable glassmaking and artisanal craftsmanship of great finesse. The combination of crystal clarity, delicately hand-painted enamels, and rich gilded ornamentation lends this set a timeless elegance. A true collector's item, this pair will naturally find its place in a refined interior or within a collection of 19th-century art glass. Dimensions: Height: 47 cm Period: 19th century Materials: Blown crystal,
