Description

This elegant little walnut desk, crafted in the late 19th century in the pure Henri II style, is distinguished by its rich carved ornamentation of floral scrolls, delicately coiled foliage, and finely modeled grotesques that enliven its waistband with Renaissance vigor. This band conceals a large drawer. Its carefully turned baluster base rests on sturdy twisted columns whose regular spirals attest to masterful craftsmanship. These columns are joined by an H-shaped crossbar, itself carved and topped with a central finial, lending stability and architectural elegance to the whole piece. The simple yet elegant top highlights the warmth of the walnut, while the drawer front reveals a rich decorative design that gives the piece a remarkable sculptural presence. The piece as a whole is a refined piece of
