Description

A refined oil painting on metal plate depicting the Circumcision of Christ, created in the very early years of the 19th century. The composition, imbued with intense spirituality and a strong devotional impact, represents one of the most significant moments in the childhood of Jesus according to Christian tradition. The scene is composed with balance and narrative vitality: the Child is placed at the center of the action, surrounded by priests and the key figures of the Gospel episode, while a skillful use of light highlights the figures and lends depth to the composition as a whole. The use of a metal plate as the support allows for a particularly meticulous application of paint, with brilliant colors and remarkable richness of detail--characteristics that make this type of support particularly prized in
