Description

An elegant example of the Amsterdam School design, this oak side chair embodies the architectural precision and expressive craftsmanship of early 20th-century modernism. The linear solid oak frame is softened by a bright green velvet seat, creating a refined interplay of geometry and texture. The high backrest and open armrests reflect the movement's sculptural approach to furniture: functional yet resolutely artistic. With its period character and warm patina, this piece is ideal for interior designers and collectors seeking authentic furniture from the Amsterdam School. It blends perfectly with modernist, Art Deco, or eclectic interiors, lending them both visual presence and historical depth.
