Description

A magnificent Art Deco-era curtain, crafted from a superb striped velvet alternating between a deep blue and a luminous golden yellow. This vertical design, with its striking graphic simplicity, lends the piece a timeless elegance and a spectacular presence. The velvet, soft to the touch and with a beautiful drape, beautifully captures the light, creating varying shades depending on the orientation of the fibers. The three sides are delicately accented by original fringed trim, providing a refined finish. Thanks to its generous size, this curtain or drape will naturally find its place in a home with character, a private mansion, or a contemporary interior seeking a striking decorative piece. This piece is in very good condition. A very beautiful panel emblematic of the Art Deco aesthetic, with fabric
