Pair of polychrome porcelain vases - Late 19th century An elegant pair of polychrome porcelain vases from the late 19th century, adorned with two figures in the round, almost sculpted as actual statuettes, depicting an elegant couple in 18th-century costume. The decoration, set against an ivory background with a marbled effect, is enriched with garlands of flowers in relief and rests on a refined polychrome roccaille base. The quality of the sculpture, the richness of the details, and the finesse of the polychrome work attest to the remarkable craftsmanship of European manufacturers during the Belle Époque.
