Description

A beautiful pair of small oval carved wooden frames, each carved from a single piece of softwood. The finely openwork decoration combines flowers, fruits, and plant scrollwork beneath a baroque-style upper shell. The golden and red patina, which is particularly well done, appears to have been subject of restoration or retouching. These frames are antique; I have noted comparable examples in auctions held by Pandolfini, where this type of work is attributed to 18th-century southern Italy.... --see tphotos of backs. Beautifully carved, lovely patina, appears to be in good condition: some surface wear; however, reverse side reveals their age, with several cracks that were previously repaired, one of which is reinforced with a consolidation splint.
