Description

Pair of wrought-iron and glass planters, Ligurian Riviera, 1950s. Dimensions: 40 × 16 × 38 h cm. A delightful pair of wrought-iron planters dating from the 1950s, made on the Ligurian Riviera. The rectangular iron frame, embellished with hammered glass panels, is topped by an elegant arch decorated with a refined polychrome floral garland made of shaped iron. The entirely handcrafted workmanship gives each piece a unique character and a romantic charm typical of post-war Italian style. The patina of age and the slight oxidation of the iron attest to the authenticity of the pieces, enhancing their vintage aesthetic without compromising their sturdiness. Perfect as cache-pots, planters, or decorative elements for winter gardens, greenhouses, terraces, and country-chic settings, they also lend
