

18th-century Emilian Mantelpiece

24 000 EUR

Period : 18th century

Condition : Très bon état

Material : Walnut

Width : 145

Height : 240

Depth : 60

Description

An important 18th-century Emilian trumeau, entirely veneered in fine walnut-banded woods, from the Emilia-Romagna region. The piece features a refined two-part structure: the lower section consists of a drop-down panel concealing a writing compartment and small interior drawers, topped by a series of small utility drawers, while the upper section consists of a two-door cabinet with rich inlay decoration and shaped panels. The cornice is embellished with an elegant, undulating pediment featuring carvings and foliage motifs, typical of 18th-century Emilian craftsmanship. The walnut veneer, carefully selected and arranged in mirror-image patterns with decorative fillets, lends great dynamism to the surface of the piece. Inside, the drop-down panel reveals a well-organized writing desk with small drawers

Dealer

Il Rigattiere di Martini

Antiques

Mobile : +393392392619

Via Aurelia nord 92

Grosseto 58100

and document compartments, designed for correspondence and household management. The lower section features spacious drawers with period hardware. A piece of great elegance and artisanal quality, representative of the 18th-century cabinetmaking tradition of northern Italy.