Description

A tender and grand polychrome plaster depiction of the Child, in all his original purity. The highly naturalistic modeling of the face, along with the sulfur-glazed eyes, lend the piece a powerful presence that makes us forgive its signs of wear. A French work from the very end of the 19th century (circa 1880-1900). Delicate polychrome--parts missing from one hand and one foot. Dimensions: 74 cm long, 42 cm wide, and 30 cm high.
