Description

Democratic Republic of the Congo, Luba/Hemba people, mid-20th century, a very lovely small carved wooden caryatid stool with a well-weathered finish, depicting a female figure seated on a circular base with a border adorned with geometric motifs. The carving of the figure is remarkable and conveys the evocative power of womanhood, with her chest proudly thrust forward--a sign of fertility--and her prominent chin radiating confidence. The sculptor's attention to detail is noteworthy, as evidenced by the carved border, the finely rendered fingers, and the proud posture. Condition: stabilized cracks and previous restorations that do not detract from the piece's aesthetic appeal. Dimensions: Height 20 x Diameter at the top 18 x Diameter at the base 17.5 (cm).
