Description

Presentation cup (or tazza) on a 19th-century pedestal in the Neoclassical/Empire style. This collector's item, crafted with great finesse, features a dual patina combining gilded bronze and silver-plated metal. The dish: The center is adorned with a relief medallion depicting the profile of an ancient warrior wearing a helmet with a crest topped by a winged chimera. It is signed along the edge: "L. OUDRY, PUBLISHER, and Faraoni, sculptor, 1869." The shaft (column): Polygonal in shape, it is decorated on each side with lion heads in high relief holding a gilded ring in their mouths. The base: A sturdy square base adorned with stylized acanthus foliage and a frieze of gadroons, resting on four small gilded spindle-shaped feet, decorated on the sides with baroque shells in
