

Napoleon III-style Painted Wood Cabinet

Description

A painted wooden workbench or sewing table from the Napoleon III period. The flap on the top reveals a mirror as well as a compartmentalized tray or sewing box. The top is surrounded by a high rim to prevent objects from falling off while sewing. It opens at the base with a drawer; beneath it is a second sliding sewing box. The side posts, featuring double baluster columns, rest on ornate feet connected by a turned wooden crossbar. This sewing table is adorned with Neoclassical-style painted decoration on all sides, set against a cream background accented by turquoise and gold borders. Please note: the tabletop is slightly warped, the mirror is frosted, and the lock is non-functional.
