Description

Large marquetry piece depicting a rope team in the Alps in very good condition. Louis Paul Thiam (1914-1973) was a French woodcarver and marquetry artist, particularly active in Lorraine. Coming from a family of artists--introduced to the craft by his father, Aimé Thiam (inventor of an innovative marquetry technique), and collaborating with his brother Albert Thiam--he specialized in a unique technique: relief marquetry (or carved wood panels in half-relief).
