Description

A stunning kilim from Kars in northeastern Anatolia. This piece is truly rare, featuring a palette of reddish-ochre and brick tones subtly accented with touches of deep, saturated indigo blue. What is truly remarkable is the quality of the hand-spun wool--ultra-soft, almost silky. The wool-on-wool weave is sensational; the piece is supple and light, with an overall delicate feel. The natural and plant-based dyes are both rare in this composition and perfectly harmonious. The ecru motifs provide a striking contrast. Circa 1900-1920. In very good condition. Please note: there is some slight bleeding of red dye into the white motifs. It is rather minor. This issue can easily be addressed by our restorer at no additional cost. Dimensions: 320 x 130
