Description

Two-tiered marquetry tea table - Louis XV styleA charming Louis XV-style two-tier tea table, crafted from precious wood and richly adorned with delicate floral marquetry. Its curved lines, elegant silhouette, and finely chiseled bronze fittings make it a piece that is as decorative as it is functional. The two scalloped trays feature refined marquetry depicting scrollwork, foliage, and flowers, crafted from various types of wood. A brass gallery frame harmoniously highlights the contours of the trays and accentuates the finesse of the cabinetmaking. The structure rests on four curved legs joined by a second tray, also inlaid, providing additional storage or display space. The legs, side handles, spandrels, feet, and chiseled bronze ornaments add a touch of refinement typical of late 19th-century French
